

Acorn Weekly

April 29-
May 9, 2024

Caring for our new garden...

Thank you for our new sensory table!!!

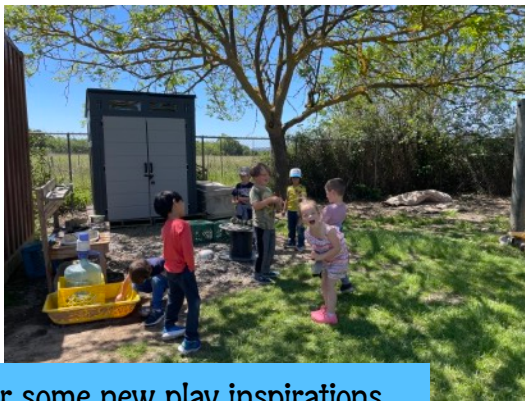

Watercolors for invitations and for gifts

Acorns have been quite busy the last couple of weeks! Creatures, water, cardboard, watercolor, oh my!

Empty squirt bottles for some new play inspirations

Letting our frogs go, then meeting our caterpillars and ladybug larva!

Acorns 1st May Day
We made flower crowns- thank you Shasta!
We prepped some "potpourri" to toss.
We took a break to meet a little lamb.
We got all dressed up.
We danced and sang.
Miss Jess made it out alive!
I'd call it a success!

I am amazed at how the Acorn children have become comfortable with all the weather. While cold and rain can be hard for some, it's really the wind that gets me. The constant sensory input and the extra effort it takes to move when the wind pushes you (think like you're 3 ft tall) can really wear on you. But these Acorns made some good fun in the wind this week. Their design and creativity shined as 12 of them made "kites"- some moved like tornados, some were ripped out of hands by the strong winds, but all were fun! We also used the wind to blow bubbles. And, found a corner to hide in when we had enough in the new hammock spot.
